

John Stevulak and his wife Tara have been members of St. Charles Borromeo since 1989. Along with their four daughters they moved around the country attending many churches with different styles of sharing the gospel. John's faith has grown in the community of St. Charles, where he has made lifelong friends. After retiring from a 45-year career in the corporate world, John joined the St. Charles Parish Council, where he hopes to support the vision and mission set by Father Kwame, fostering communication and collaboration within the Catholic community. His goal is to help the parish fulfill its focus in liturgy, learning, and living its faith.
